XPENSER

Intelligent document parser

It is extremely cumbersome to repeatedly and manually type the huge amount of documents that companies receive regularly in electronic format from their providers.

Xpenser is a data management software tool based on modern technologies that interprets and extracts the information contained in these documents in PDF format.

The result is stored in a database in which different departments of the company can be associated to expenses helping to optimize the resources of the company while reducing costs.

Xpenser is a web platform that allows the consolidation of data of different sources, generated from digital documents, which do not need to be manually typed.

ABOUT XPENSER

Xpenser uses a technique called "scrapping", reading information scattered within the document and transforming its content into storable information in a database.

The process of reading the digitized information is done using algorithms that recognize each type of document and apply the corresponding interpretation rules.

The result of this interpretation is similar to what a person would do when reading the document and type it manually in any ERP / CRM software, but avoiding the propagation of human errors.

Xpenser builds multiple charts and reports, consolidating very large data volumes ("big data") and transforming them into understandable and easy-to-manage information.
